

"There's just one sad thing,"
said Willoughby.

"What's that?" asked Willa.

"The morning is waiting for you, too.
It's waiting to wake you up."

"But I'm awake already," said Willa.

"That's why it's sad," said Willoughby.

"The morning likes waking you up.
That's what makes the morning happy."

"Willoughby," said Willa.

"What is it?" said Willoughby.

"I'm tired."

